PROJECT REPORT

ShelterBoxes

The ShelterBox project is run by Rotary clubs around the world to provide shelter and beds to people made homeless in natural disasters.

After the disruption of civil conflict, storms and floods, earthquakes and other disasters, ShelterBoxes provide the immediate needs for shelter, cooking and other essential equipment.

A typical ShelterBox contains a 10-person dome tent, 10 thermal blankets, a multi-fuel stove, cooking pans, bowls, mugs and utensils, water purification tablets, collapsible water containers, spade, rope, tools and other basic equipment.

Stocks of ShelterBoxes are maintained at depots in Australia and other countries ready for immediate dispatch to disaster areas.

ShelterBox Response Teams organise the delivery of boxes using all available transport means, from military aid flights to local alternatives such as mules and purpose-built rafts.

Each Shelterbox costs about $1200 to manufacturer and equip.

ShelterBoxes provide temporary housing and essential equipment for families displaced by disastrous flooding in Zambia's southern provinces
